Just a Lot of Stories Without Any Excuse at All.

Opinion of Sumner—The Depow Joke
That Failed — A Tale of Earth—quake Times.

COPYRIGHT, 1898.1

The grim American humor crops out in the most unlikely places, like the granite rocks scaming the scanty soil in New Hampshire.

It isn't true in this country, as in England, that the man who makes a joke gets the reputation of being a master mind. Pretty nearly all our statesmen have been clever at repartee.

To William M. Evarts is commonly ascribed the very familiar story about Washington throwing a silver dollar

BUT THERE ARE GENTLEMEN PRESENT," SAID GRANT.

scross the Potomac. "But you must remember," he is represented as saying, while secretary of state, to a distinguished foreign diplomat, to whom he made the statement, "that a dollar went farther then than it does now."

That's old, but here is one about Mr. Evarts which has never been in print. He was invited at one time to a dinner at the house of a rich manufacturer in Boston, who proved at dinner to be a pompous old bore. Whenever any of the distinguished gentry ventured a remark, this man would break in with his exasperating drawl: "As I once said to Daniel Webster-" or "when I was with Charles Sumner at-"

Evarts stood it as long as he could. After dinner in the smoking-room, he turned upon his tormentor with the remark: "You do yourself a great injustice, sir."

"How so?" demanded the man, taken

"Why," said Mr. Evarts, deliberately, twiddling his eyeglass, as was his cus-tom, "you have been modestly relating to us these interesting reminiscences of our great departed when everyone knows that there have been in your experience events of far more historical weight-as that, for instance, when Columbus neared our coast it was the voice of Mr. — that guided him on his course with these immortal words: 'Neau, Mr. Columbus (imitating the old man's drawl), if you'll on'y p'int her head right over that way, you'll make land all right." This was not humor. It was witthe caustic kind that stings. Probably there was provocation. It was this same Boston merchant whose peculiarities were the butt of many a merry tale. A boy was seen crying or Washington street one day.

natured man. "My cent's follen down there," said the sniveling boy, pointing through a grating.

"What's the matter?" said a good-

"Oh, that's nothing. Just run in and tell Mr. - . He'll climb down and get

"Yes, he will," sobbed the boy, with a fresh outburst of grief, "B-b-but he'd keep it for himself.' Gen. Grant was not usually credited with quickness of repartee, but when a man said to him one day: "Charles Sumner doesn't believe in the Bible," Grant's quiet rejoinder was: "Of course not; he didn't write it."

And once in camp, when a "fresh" officer started in to tell a doubtful story with the prefix: "As there are no ladies present," Gen. Grant promptly remarked: "But there are gentlemen present," and the story was never told. When Preston King went to congress he couldn't take a vestibule train, but had to cide on horseback, coach, canalboat and the like. So he told with feeling this touching tale:

"One day when I was riding along a muddy road in northern New York I observed a little distance away a riding whip apparently sticking up in the mud. I stooped to pick it up, but, meeting with unexpected resistance, discovered that it was tightly clasped in a human hand. I summoned assistance and we soon had the mud-plastered gentleman dug out of the bottomless abysa. 'Gentleman,' said he, as he stood there in his mud-plastered raiment, 'I thank you all for your kind assistance, but for which I must inevitably have lost my life. Now if you will add to your good labors by assisting me to re-cover my horse, I will—"
"Hold on," said a Louisians man

(this was in a congressional cloukroom), "your story is all right, King. only it happened in my own love, "Pshaw!" sald a Virginian. "It was ot a dozen miles from Washington." As a matter of fact, the story is sev eral thousand years old and still in comparatively good health.

There is a Chicago story which is told about Eugene Field, Philip D. Armour, Dr. Gunsaulus and half a dozen other victims. The hero couldn't have been Field, for he is an accomplished linguist. The tale runs that a Chicago man visiting Paris sat down one day in a restourant. Utterly ignorant of the lan-guage, he ran his thumb down the bill of fare a little way and said: "Herel Bring me some o' that." The waiter complied, shrugging his shoulders as one who disclaims responsibility and pres-ently returned with a dish of pickled

"H-l!" remarked the pork packer, surveying the array, "how did he know

I was from Chicago?"
Channey M. Depew, Robert G. Inger-soll and Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, are called three of the wittiest speaker in America. One of Depew's best jokes fell flat when first uttered and became famous next day. It was at the mass meeting during the Minneapolis convention. Depew was holding his andience in great shape when he compared somebody or something with "the inebriated chamois which, in its Alpine fastness, leaps from jag to jag." Probably because Depew's accurate pronunciation of the word "chamois" the one taught in the district schools, there was hardly a ripple of laughter. Next day, when folks saw the joke in type, they roared.

Speaker Capron, of Rhode Island, tells with gusto a story of a tax collector who, after an exciting experience out-side, burst into an Irish woman's cabin with the remark: "I'll have to tax you for that goat, Mrs. Mulcahey." "An' why, thin, darlint?"

"Because the law distinctly says must tax all property bounding and abutting on this street, and that goat has been a-bounding and a-butting on that street for the last half hour." Either Frank Stockton or Julius

Dr. Morris Gibbs contributes to Science an interesting paper on the food of hummingbirds. He has carefully dissected many hummingbirds, both old and young, but has never found anything to convince him that the birds live on insects. It may be that at times when flowers are scarce, some species of insects are captured, but Dr. Gibbs is satisfied that in season, when flowers wasn't | are abundant, the ruby-throat of Michigan lives on honey.
